If business owners think recent times have been tough, they should expect them to get tougher. A Senate panel is urging that the IRS crack down on businesses that are delinquent in payroll taxes. See GAP report. The current amount owed to the IRS from delinquent businesses is a mind-boggling $58 billion. It is important to note that the IRS can assess personal liability against responsible parties for the trust fund portion of these taxes.

It is necessary to take a proactive stance. We will assist you in resolving your business debt with the IRS as well as to help prevent the assessment of personal liability.
